PRIVATELY ISSUED I.D. AND THE LAW

On the next two pages is reproduced a very important federal law which is aimed at privately-issued identification cards and documents. It is known as Public Law 97-398, the False Identification Crime Control Act of 1982. It became effective January 1, 1983.

We will not presume to provide a complete legal interpretation of this law; for exact meanings you would be best advised to consult an attorney. A few general observations will give you a fair idea of what this law means.

The concern of Congress in passing this law was to end what they regarded as flagrant and costly abuses of government support programs from which individuals, armed with "false ID", were extracting benefits to which they were not entitled. This was pure fraud, and Congress was right in cutting off the thieves and swindlers. We have no sympathy for people who want to live off the taxpayers.

The law affects privately-issued identification documents, however, by requiring the phrase "NOT A GOVERNMENT DOCUMENT" on the face of the document if it bears a birthdate or age of the person named. Presumably, if the card does NOT show an age or birthdate, the phrase is not required. It appears to us that most sellers of ID cards by mail understand the law in this respect, and act accordingly.

Obviously those (young) people who want to show an ID with an age perhaps older than they are at present will not appreciate this law's requiring their ID card to proclaim "NOT A GOVERNMENT DOCUMENT", when the use of an unmarked card might have made things much simpler. Our condolences.

On the other hand, mature individuals for whom age is not of concern can easily do without the facts of age being present on their ID. When a person is obviously over 21, there really is no longer the concern about, or interest in this fact. Identification documents issued privately to such individuals, by not showing evidence of age, need not also proclaim "NOT A GOVERNMENT DOCUMENT", perhaps an advantage they sought in procuring the card or document in the first place.

Our readers should be aware of this law and not expect vendors of ID by mail to violate it. It is likewise incumbent on the sellers of such products to display honestly and openly the appearance of their cards and documents, illustrating correctly the application of this law. We believe that those sellers of ID which does not comply with the law do so at serious risk to themselves and their businesses. We don't advise it, and certainly don't condone it.

Representations of ID products in I.D. by Mail are taken directly from printed materials and actual products provided us by the sellers themselves. We advise our readers to obtain sales brochures and applications by writing the sellers themselves, and then deciding how the federal law might affect their purchasing decisions.

So be aware, folks, now there IS a law...

INTRODUCTION

ID BY MAIL AND INTERNET presents the world of privately issued ID cards and documents. Private individuals and companies make these products available by mail to serve the private needs of their customers. While there is a federal law (reproduced on the previous two pages) that places certain requirements on these products, they remain legal to sell through the mail.

Personal identification is not a function that somehow “belongs” to the government. Americans have always had the Common Law right to change their names. So long as an individual does not have the intent to defraud by means of the name change, he is free to call himself by any name he chooses. Government’s proper role is that of recognizing and recording names and issuing public documents only as “evidence” of identity, not the identity itself. A person can acquire privately issued identification documents in whatever name he likes, thus determining his identity as well.

ID BY MAIL AND INTERNET is intended as a source for further inquiry. It provides the companies’ names, addresses, and websites that can be contacted for information about their products and services. This book acts as a directory, not a catalog, however. Contact the companies directly for their current brochures and order forms which will then provide the specific information you need for ordering their products. Please use good business sense when ordering products from these companies. Keep records of your orders should a problem arise. Realize, too, that not all firms may respond or perform as quickly as you might wish. If a problem develops you will have to deal directly with the firm. We do not guarantee the reliability or performance of any firm listed in ID BY MAIL AND INTERNET and cannot intervene on your behalf. Regarding firms you find on the internet, we offer these WARNINGS that deserve EXTREME CAUTION. Be very aware and careful if:

- The website does not feature an actual mailing address within the U.S.
- They do not offer a “contact” that will respond personally to your inquiry.
- The website requires an unacceptable or unfamiliar form of payment.
- The website looks almost identical to one you saw earlier with the same headlines and offers. They stole the website and will steal your money too.
- The website contains obvious misspellings and errors in English usage. Foreign criminals have “translated” websites to make easy money from the gullible.
- The website will not mail you any physical order form or descriptive material regarding their products and services. Without something from them by mail, don’t expect your order either.
- Finally, don’t believe so-called “ratings,” “recommendations,” and “warnings” about other website firms. These are all “inside jobs” blasting the competition.

At the end of this book we have included samples of typical sales flyers you might receive in the mail. Please be aware, however, that ID firms are constantly changing their products and services, and their current advertising will reflect these changes.

Also included are some blank forms that many readers have found useful for the purposes represented on the forms themselves. Many similar items are also offered currently by some of the firms listed in this book. If you're curious if a firm might offer a particular form, or create a specific document or certificate, just ask. Many do "custom work" in addition to their advertised products. Again, follow the precautions we stated above.

THE WORLD PASSPORT

The mandate for the WORLD PASSPORT is Article 13(2) of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights:

Everyone has the right to leave any country, including one's own, and to return to one's country.

The World Passport is a 30 page Machine Readable Travel Document (MRTD*) with alphanumeric code line, scanned-in passport photo and "ghost" security paper with embedded logo, the data page laminated, in 7 languages:

English, French, Spanish, Russian, Arabic, Chinese and Esperanto.

Each passport is numbered and each page contains the World Citizen logo as background. Two pages are reserved for affiliate identifications: diplomatic corps, organizations, firms, etc. There are nineteen visa pages. In the inside back cover, there is space for home address, next of kin, doctor, employer, driving license no. and national passport/identity number. The cover is blue with gold lettering.

For nation-state recognition, please go to Documents / Visas.

To apply for a World Passport, please go to the World Passport Application Form

The World Passport represents the inalienable human right of freedom of travel on planet Earth. Therefore it is premised on the fundamental oneness or unity of the human community.

Quote of the day

Peace begins with each one of us....We do not complain at the sorry state of the world. We take responsibility. We take action. We take charge of our kitchen.

We have heard that some people use products such as this to obtain a real driver's license, a new Social Security Number, even credit cards. We do not recommend this practice and will not be held responsible or liable for the use of misuse of such documents, See the description at the back of this book for THE PAPER TRIP III, for further information on this topic.
